After a turbulent decade its time to take stock and plan for a flying start in 2010!

Take time to stock and to review your strategy for improving organisational climate as a platform for building a more positive corporate culture.

How healthy is your work environment?

Have you considered the costs of a negative organisational climate?

Conducting a climate survey will help you diagnose and address issues such as:

- Bullying and harassment
- Communication blockages
- Leadership and supervision effectiveness
- Teamwork performance
- Satisfaction with rewards
- Level of productivity,
- Low trust
- Innovation capability

Addressing immediate morale problems establishes good will and improves trust in management. Unlike culture, climate can be improved quite quickly and when this occurs there is a better environment for entering the more complex, longer term culture change phase.

Climate Survey includes:

- Initial briefings
- Survey design
- Conduct of survey and analysis
- Feedback report
- Recommendations for follow-up action
