Transfer Knowledge into Results. Making time to focus on developing your own leadership capabilities is not a luxury, it's a necessity. To stay ahead of the game, leaders need to equip themselves with concrete learning experiences on and off the job.

Your leadership ability and understanding how to learn are two of the most valuable and transferable capabilities that are sought after by today's organisations.

"A knowledge intensive workplace thrives on the exchange of ideas and experiences" Leaders today want time to review their experiences and explore new ideas with others who are eager to progress.

Learning Groups link closely with training programs and other learning initiatives.

Participants will transfer their knowledge into results by;

- Developing their leadership capabilities on the job
- Building strong peer relationships with others in the organisation
- Encouraging the growth of self and others over time
- Achieving goals valuable to them and their organisation.
