Full SHL training in objective assessment

Whether you use paper and pencil testing, online administration or a combination of methods, this comprehensive course will enable you to select, administer and interpret the full range of SHL tests and questionnaires.

What will I learn?

- How to select the most suitable tests and questionnaires to assess for a particular role
- How to administer and score assessments in a range of scenarios
- How to interpret results and provide feedback on ability tests, and the motivation and personality questionnaire reports
- How to integrate results from a variety of assessment methods to support decision-making

SHL Personality and Ability Assessment training is aimed at HR Managers and professionals who require full access to the SHL product range. This type of training is suitable for organisations who wish to interpret reports and results themselves to allow self-sufficiency in the entire assessment process.

Once your organisation has an employee trained at this level, other staff can undertake a lower level of training to administer assessments and have the fully trained user interpret the results.
